How the collaboration works

UNIVERSITY OF LONDON

INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMMES

We have students in 180 countries

the total number of students has increased by over 50% this decade

Our students and alumni : some traditional; some mobile some on a second chance....

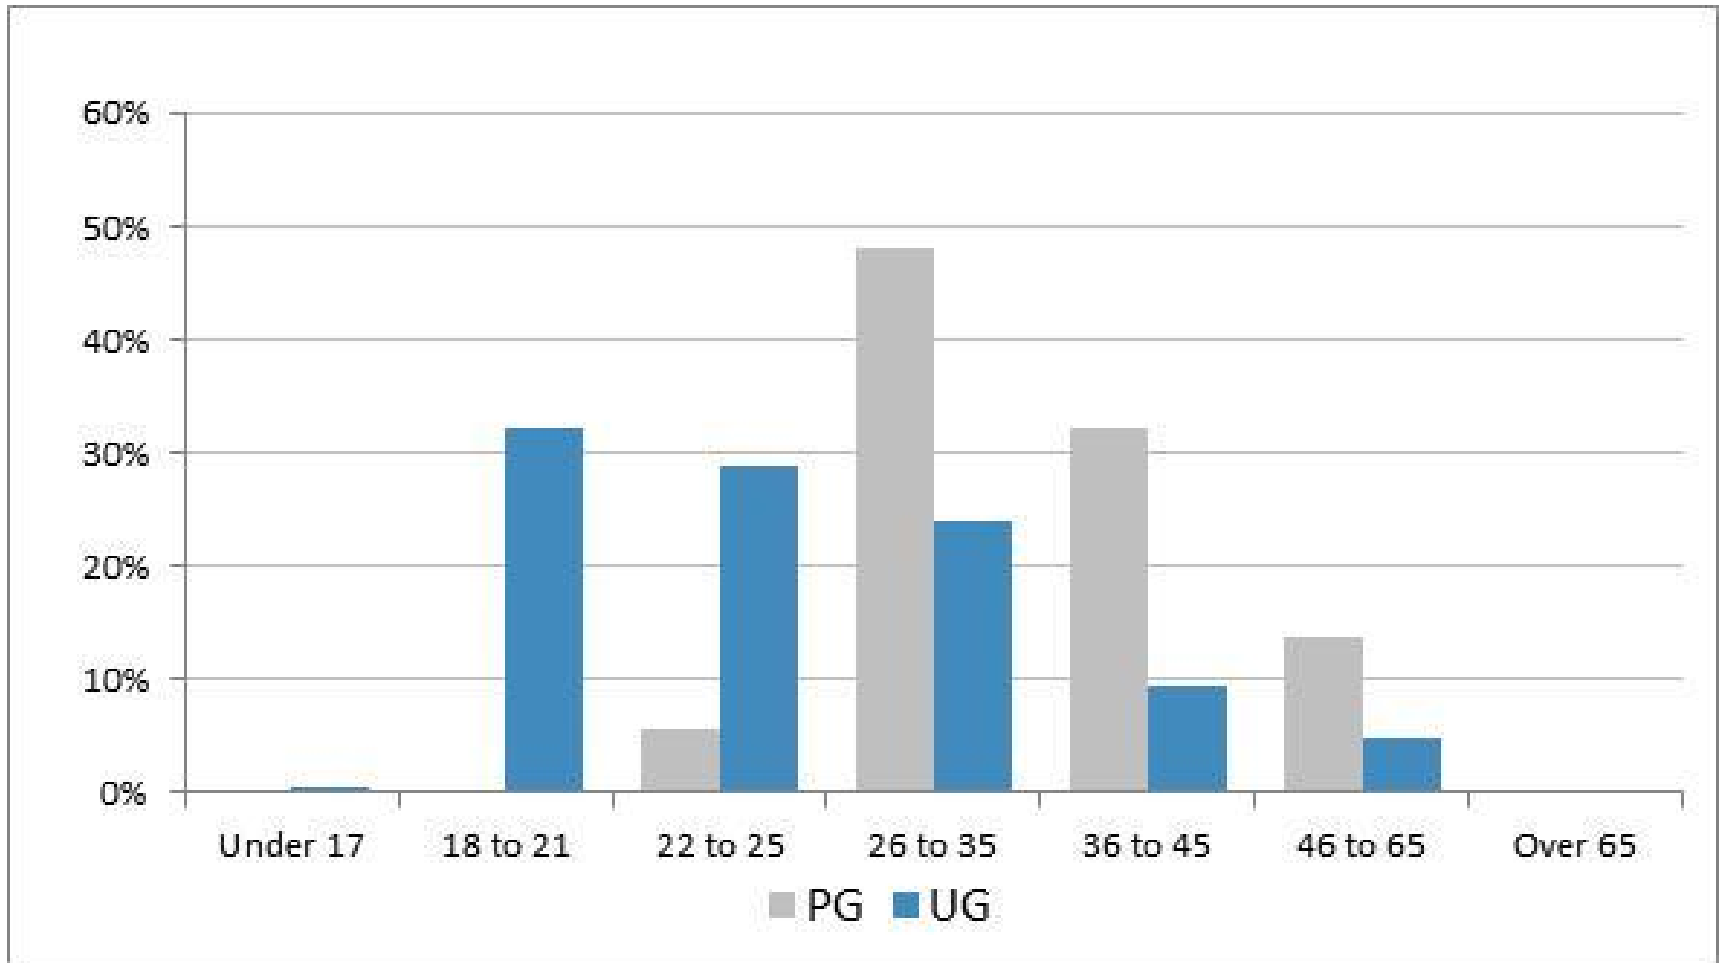

And two modes of study

Pressures for change

“HE providers are having to address fresh challenges to meet the needs of increasingly diverse learners as they seek to position themselves in a changing educational landscape that is increasingly student driven and market led”.

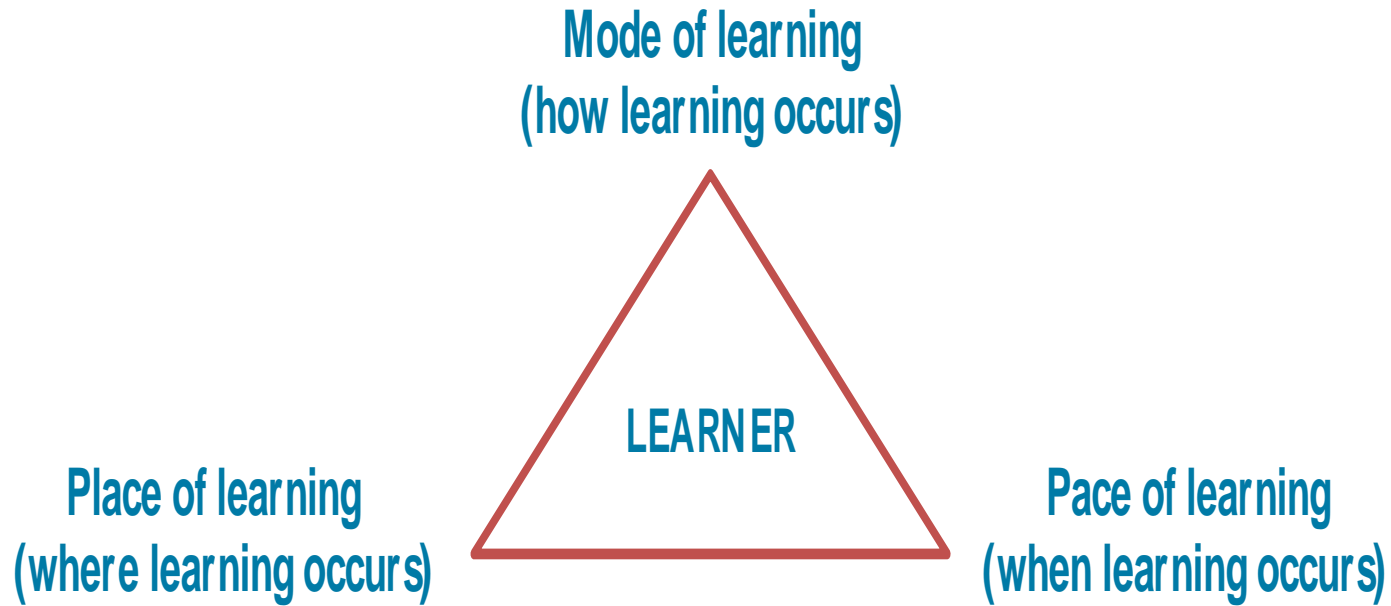

“the traditional division between full-time and part-time learning is increasingly becoming less distinct as learners are looking for more flexible ways that allow individuals to choose ways of structuring their study around their work and family commitments”.

Local and Global??

Ghemawat HBR 2010

STRATEGY AND COMPETITION

Adapt to local differences

Invest more selectively

Watch for emerging-market competition

MARKETS AND PRODUCTS

Focus on underserved segments everywhere

Recognize price pressures

Cultivate requisite variety

OPERATIONS AND INNOVATION

Rethink the scope of offshoring

Simplify supply chains

Import process innovations from emerging economies

Move R&D to where the researchers and the market growth are

ORGANIZATION AND PEOPLE

Re-create country manager functions

Relocate key functions

Develop a globally representative talent pool

Exploit communication technologies

IDENTITY AND REPUTATION

Build a strong corporate identity

Emphasize corporate citizenship

Restore the reputation of business in general

"New York is the anchor, thus the expansion. We're building Abu Dhabi as part of a circulatory system on six continents. You choose a continent for your next semester as easily as you choose a course. If you're an Indian economist who has an aging mother in Bombay, we can have you in Abu Dhabi where you can go home for a weekend." (Hechinger 2010)

Profile:
Nina Bergmann

‘The parallel study of a common law and a civil law system broadened my understanding of law and legal issues. Handling the workload of two degrees in different languages helped me build time-management skills, self-discipline, facilitated my independent thinking and enhanced my linguistic skills. These are of great help to me now during my PhD studies.’
